YES to a neutral Administrator for Toll Free resources;

YES to independent Auditing standards;

NO to Economist's suggestion of a no-regulation free market, because it would create allocation to the highest bidders, best financed, and inhibit new entrants. The Economist's proposal is amoral and not a basis for public policy. Current anti-warehousing and anti-hoarding policies (and Part 52 Regulations) are founded in a political and moral distaste for serving self interests with public resources, particularly where assignee of resource has no objective to actually use the resources but only looks to becoming a barrier for extorting money.

YES to Enforcement officials to survey SMS database to determine extent of multiple toll free numbers routed to the same destination.
